

*image
not available*

The Specifier's Guide: 2004, Heating And Ventilating Contractors' Association, Emap Maclaren for the HVCA, 2004, , . .

DOWNLOAD <http://bit.ly/1jOCNo0>

, , , , . .

The Building and Engineering Services Association (B&ES), formerly the Heating and Ventilating Contractors' Association, founded in 1904, is the main UK trade association for companies that design, install, commission and maintain heating, ventilation, air conditioning, refrigeration (HVACR) and related engineering projects.

The B&ES provides quality services, promotes excellence and seeks to shape the commercial environment in which its members operate through representation and leadership. It provides technical support services tailored to particular industry specialisms which include: ductwork, heating and plumbing services, refrigeration and air conditioning, and service and facilities.