A Life Worth Dying For , Jim Mandelin, Don Rock, Alison Diesvelt, 2012, Family & Relationships, 208 pages. A Life Worth Dying For: The Jim Mandelin Story, by Jim Mandelin with Don Rock and Alison Diesvelt, is the true story of a man, who endured a childhood strewn with daily

A spiritual love story dealing with soul mates, one who has passed to the other side of life, but still connects with his wife through her dreams of him. Their love is strong; they realize that the only way to remain connected is to let each other go. Jerry describes how he feels on the other side as he watches Elaine in her grief. Geese also mate for life; Ben (the goose) having lost his mate finds his life parallels. Life is temporary, love is forever.

Don Rock holds a Professional Writing Certificate from Mt. Royal College in Calgary, Alberta, Canada where he studied writings from accomplished, published writers. His writings include Pie-Wacket, a nonfiction crime story, and Coup de Grace, which deals with parental abduction. He is presently working on the experiences of a Mt. Everest climber - this fascinating documentary will be published and released this year.

Six months before the accident, Dr Jerry Kapach is mystified while listening intently to the predictions of the psychic whispering the voice of an unseen spirit into the small dingy reading room. "You will not see the leaves fall from the trees..." the voice hisses. Six months later Dr Jerry Kapach dies in a fishing accident on a remote mountain lake. In Soulful Town, on the other side of life, Jerry is awakened by the warm, gentle tears of his grieving wife, Elaine, who remains profoundly connected to the spirit of her late husband, her soul mate, through many soulful attachments and memories accumulated between them throughout their years together. In the weeks that follow, a Canada goose nests in the tall grass, at the back of Elaine and Jerry's old house. As a reminder that geese mate for life, Elaine refers to him as 'Ben', who soon occupies her dreams and through poetry reflects the relationship between soul mates. Through feelings of hopelessness and despair, she struggles to write her thoughts in her journal, and slowly discovers something about herself during this painful process. Institutionalized by the attachment to his soul mate, Jerry wanders through and re-vi

From August 14th to the 24th over 60 restaurants in the Grand Rapids area will be participating in the fourth year of restaurant week. The 11 day event will showcase some of the best dining in the area – featuring Michigan-grown food, fantastic wines, cool brews, and imaginative cocktails. All of the participating restaurants will boast unique menus – savoring the summer harvest, farm-to-fork style. With many of the dishes featuring produce and products from West Michigan, there's really no better way to celebrate our city.

To kickstart the event, participating restaurants will enter in the Grand Cocktail 2013. Using Woodford Reserve craft bourbon and fresh local ingredients, each establishment will compete to win the Best Creative Cocktail and the Best Manhattan. Our very own Melissa Dembny will craft her best original Manhattan at the FireRock Grille, a cocktail sure to impress. Taste them all while exploring the area and vote for your favorite here starting August 1st.

For Restaurant Week, many of the participating restaurants offer either 3 courses for $25 (per person) or 2 dinners (3 courses each) for $25 – a deal too good to miss. Our very own Reds on the River, Rush Creek Bistro, FireRock Grille, and Watermark Grille will all be serving three delicious courses for $25. Check out the mouthwatering menu at Reds:
